The screenshot shows the homepage of Page Collective. At the top, there's a search bar with the placeholder "Search for pages...", followed by a navigation menu with links to "App screens" (with a dropdown arrow), "Landing pages" (underlined in blue), and "User flows". To the right are "Feedback?" and "Submit" buttons. On the left, there's a sidebar with sections for "Pages" (Landing page, Pricing, Integrations, Careers, Features, + Show more), "Elements" (Hero header, Accordion, Timeline, Code snippet, Form, Search, Chart, + Show more), "Product categories" (SaaS, E-commerce, Education, Finance, Project management, Marketing, + Show more), and "Products" (Headspace, Stripe, Abstract, Frame.io, GitBook, Mailbrew, + Show more). The main content area features a large callout for "Get landing page inspiration in your inbox every week" with a "Subscribe" button and an input field for "Your email". Below this, a sub-callout states "We never send spam and you can unsubscribe instantly with one click." Three examples of landing pages are shown in cards: "Pinpoint" (a recruitment tool), "Mural" (a digital whiteboard), and "Zwerm" (a brand marketing platform). Each card includes a small image of the landing page and its name.
